Speech by Dr Mohammed Fares, Secretary General of the Moroccan Green Party

This AGF-FEVA congress is being held in a complicated and complex context both at the global and local levels.

On our beautiful and generous continent, the war between the great powers has amplified and branched out.

It has enormous negative impacts on the continent, on our nations and threatens peace and tranquility in the world.

The ways of exploiting the planet's wealth, the hegemony of the irrational consumer culture and the underestimation of the risks and repercussions on the ecological system of our dear earth will lead us all to pay dearly. Even, these political-economic-social and ecological “crazes” are “too expensive”.

A general trend has taken hold, which aims to encourage and even create internal conflicts which are mostly armed conflicts. In a world that aims to respect human rights, intolerance is encouraged and supported.

We must be aware that the future is common, and does not exclude anyone. As a result, responsibility is common and shared. Acting is no longer a choice, but a duty and a historical necessity.

My dear friends, our conference must be historic in its results.

We had a promising experience. But a little painful due to some management errors; you have to have the courage to admit it openly and without regret. For our African green future, we must clean up some practices that do not conform to current realities.

We must reorganize ourselves to act better and better manage our programs to implement a common strategy. We must be more creative to better reposition ourselves internationally.

We must support each other, intensify our cooperation, share our experiences, encourage our skills, multiply and diversify our friends throughout the world of greens and humanists.

Let hope prevail! Long live life, long live Africa!

Thank you to all of you.
